Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1, 2, 6, 7, 10 and 12-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Pub No 2002/0062262 issued to Vasconi et al (hereafter Vasconi).

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 3-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Vasconi in view of Pub No US 2002/0055911 issued to Guerreri.

Claim 3:

Art Unit: 2161

Vasconi discloses the elements of claim 1 as noted above but does not disclose wherein said server periodically collects said branded information provided via said supplier subscription records and populates a portal web site associated with said registered customer system utilizing metatags provided by said subscribing supplier system. Guerreri discloses the buyer may input examples of words that commercial websites may use as metatags to attract customers to their website [paragraph 35]. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Vasconi to include wherein said server periodically collects said branded information provided via said supplier subscription records and populates a portal web site associated with said registered customer system utilizing metatags provided by said subscribing supplier system based on the teachings of Guerreri for the purpose of attracting customers to their website [paragraph 35].

Claim 4:

The combination of Vasconi and Guerreri discloses the elements of claims 1 and 3 as noted above but does not disclose wherein said branding tool utilizes said metatags for preventing dissemination of said branded information to unauthorized systems. Examiner maintains that per claim 3, metatags are used to populate the portal website of a registered customer, it is inherent that wherein said branding tool utilizes said metatags for preventing dissemination of said branded information to unauthorized systems.

Claim 5:

The combination of Vasconi and Guerreri discloses the elements of claims 1 and 3 as noted above and furthermore discloses wherein said portal web site is hosted by said information exchange system [Vasconi Figs 3A, 3B]

Claim 8 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Vasconi in view of Pub No US 20020138527 issued to Bell et al (hereafter Bell).

Claim 8:

Vasconi discloses the elements of claim 1 as noted above but does not disclose wherein said branding tool generates and disseminates reports based upon said web site metrics tracking. Bell discloses reporting login tracking [paragraph 146]. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Vasconi to include wherein said branding tool generates and disseminates reports based upon said web site metrics tracking based on the disclosure of Bell for the purpose of providing participants with information regarding frequency of access to the website [paragraph 146]

Claim 9 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Vasconi in view of Pub No US 2003/0074424 issued to Giles et al (hereafter Giles).

Claim 9:

Vasconi discloses the elements of claim 1 as noted above but does not disclose wherein said enterprise portal site includes personal employee web portals for employees of said registered customer system. Giles discloses a personal portal of John Smith [paragraphs 60 and 63 and Figs 4 and 5]. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Vasconi to include wherein said enterprise portal site includes personal employee web portals for employees of said registered customer system based on the disclosure of Giles for the purpose of customizing a web page according to the information required by the employee in order to perform his role in the company [paragraph 63].

Art Unit: 2161

Claim 11 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Vasconi.

Claim 11:

Vasconi discloses employee job function and employee job title [paragraph 60] but does not disclose employee language. Official Notice is taken that employee language is well-known and expected in the art. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Vasconi to include employee language for the purpose of providing communications which the employee can understand.
